

The heatmap displays gene expression data across various samples. The columns are labeled with gene names and sample IDs, and the rows are labeled with sample IDs. The overall pattern shows distinct clusters of genes and samples, indicating different expression profiles.